

DARLA

Audition Side

"American Deadbeats"

The bustling coffee shop sees a constant flow of people entering and exiting. Bill and Jerry sit near the back, sipping black coffee, penning down ideas on a notepad amid the lively atmosphere.

A young and attractive woman, DARLA, approaches them. She had been seated at the table behind them.

DARLA

Excuse me, are you guys looking to make a film?

BILL

Yeah?

DARLA

Oh wow, I'm a student at Canyon State. I couldn't help but hear a little bit of your convo, but I figured I'd introduce myself. I'm Darla.

BILL

I'm Bill.

JERRY

Jerry.

They shake hands.

DARLA

It's so funny I actually just finished writing my first feature film the other day.

JERRY

No kidding?

DARLA

Yeah, I'm majoring in screenwriting and I have no intentions of directing this script.

BILL

So why'd you write it?

DARLA

I wanted to see if I could do it, and I did. I think it turned out really good.

JERRY

Oh yeah? Can you send it to us?

DARLA

Okay, whoops. I just let my roommate borrow my only copy, but would you guys wanna stop by later tonight and pick it up?